THE SPEAKER.

Unanimous Report of the Committee on the Harney Charges.

THEY ARE UNQUALIFIEDLY FALSE.

Rloquent Tribute of Republican Members To a Life of Purity and Honor.

CONDITION OF MR. KERR'S HEALTH

A memorable scone took place to-day when the House by a rising and unanimous vote exonerated Speaker Kerr from any malfeasance in the nomination of Greene for an appointment in the army. The unautmous report of the committee to this effect was presented by Mr. Clymer, and its adoption advocated by him in a few well chosen sentences. He was followed by Mr. Danford, of Ohio, representing the republican portion ble duty to discharge. His rejoinder in explanation of the republican interest in the investigation of the charges against Mr. Kerr was forcible, convincing and satisfactory. Mr. Danford, who heretotore has been quiet and reticent, comes to the front as one of the leading members of the House. The great compliment of the vote of exoneration was medicine to Mr. Kerr, who improved so much on hearing of it that he sat up for a while this afternoon and ate, for him, a hearty

In the House to-day Mr. Clymer, of Pennsylvania, from the Committe on Expenditures in the War Department, made a report in the case of the charge against The report states that after a full mquiry into the facis, and after a thorough examinasion of Laurence Harney, the only witness making the tharge; also of Augustus P. Greene and divers other witnesses, it appeared that, in 1866, while a member of the House of Representatives of the Thirty-ninth Congress, Mr. Kerr, in the exercise of his right or privilege, nominated Greene for an appointment in the regular army. The committee, however, had found no difficulty in reaching the conclusion that the charge as to the payment of money to Mr. Kerr was unqualifiedly false and that Mr. Kerr stood fully exonerated from all implication affecting his personal honor or official payment of money to Mr. Kerr was unqualifiedly false and that Mr. Kerr stood fully exonerated from all implication affecting his personal honor or official integrity. The committee had found nothing in the whole progress of the investigation to imply or detract from the well established reputation of Mr. Kerr for inquestioned personal integrity and unsulfied purity.

Mr. Clymen remarked that the conclusion reached ras the unanimous judgment not only of the committee, but of the House and the country.

Syrech of Mr. Dayford.

Mr. Dayford, of Ohlo, a republican member of the committee, said that it afforded him real pleasure to be able to subscribe to the report, not because of the unfortunate illness of Mr. Kerr, but because it was an act of simple justice to that gentleman. He spoke of the unfortunate circumstance which presented itself at the threshold of the inquiry—as to Mr. Kerr, a demorrat from Indiana, giving the nomination to Greene, a republican from New York—and said that had it not been for that circumstance the committee would not have deemed it worth while to even enter on the investigation. He was happy to say, however, that he had no idea that, so far as the corruption of Mr. Kerr was conterned, there was a single scintilla of truth in Haracy's testimony. It was a falsehood, taken advantage of by a bad man for the purpose of attempting to blacken the reputation of a good man. (Applause.) He spoke of these investigations, used by bad men like Harney, as being the very worst instruments that can be used in a country liky-inis. The testimony of Harney was but the natural outgrowth of these investigations. Committees of the House had been seen this, tession modesing around and dragging the public life and privats correspondence of citizens into publicity; publishing even the bank accounts of officians without charges and without specifications. He had thought, at times, that there was in some quarters trainfeat on when all men should honor and respect for the position which he occupied. He was a man w ing the Irresident in a questionable trausaction of another committee, in which a witness was brought to testify against the Irresident in regard to the steaking up of the marital relations of the witness. The witness had come without a single corrotorating incumstance, without a single fact to support his testimony, and yet, though the Irresident's public character might be biasted, his reputation smirched forever and his family relatious broken up (if that might be), that committee left called upon to examine that witness smit it was learned that he was a funatic. He had also a his mind a committee of the House, which, by the process of an officer of the House, had gone to the office of one of the telegraph companies of the country, and had softed several hundred pounds of telegraph nessages, induseriminately from chizens of all classes in regard to private and public affairs alike, o be moused through by a committee of the House, was a wonderful, therefore, that such conduct and such operations should be referred that that man was corrupt, and that sould be reasoned that that man was corrupt, and that sould be reasoned that that man was corrupt, and that sould be reasoned the country. He was of retaination for passing through all the testimony and after hearing the clear statement of Mr. Kerr, who gave to the nominative a satisfactory explanation of his appointment of foreme that he had ottered the nomination to two personal triends, who had declined it, &c., the leating that weighed in his (Mr. Danford's) mind about all those circumstances, that was the good name of Mr. Kerr, a name that had been borre without reproach for many sessions of the House. The strength of the political institutions of the sounity was in the good and great men whom they had produced, and he should be loath to believe that any man occupying the high position which Mr. Kerr cocupied before the country, and the report of the soundarion of his paper, and the heart of scandal touched it. It was the duty of the House, the had been borre record that the report was adopted quantinously.

The SPEAKER pro lem directed the Clerk to let it be recorded on the record as the unanimous vote of the louse.

Mr. L.KAYENWORTH, (rep.) of N. Y., suggested as highly proper that the liouse should termish to Mr. Kerr, in the most formal manner, a certified copy of the proceedings on this occasion, and he made a motion to that effect. The motion was agreed to and the Clerk was in-

AMUSEMENTS.

BOOTH'S THEATEE-AIMER AND OFFENBACH.

If the inaugural performance last night be taken as criterion for the success of the brief season of opera bouffe undertaken by Mile. Aimée and M. Offenbach, at the recognized home of Shakespearian drams, the management cannot complain of not receiving the most emphatic encouragement from the public. A large, brilliant house, good humored in the extreme and enthusiastic in its reception of the two principal and enthusiastic in its receptions of the two principal personages of the performance—the prima donna and the composer—gave èclaf to the opening of the season. When Offenbach made his appearance in the orchestra, before the curtain was rung up for the second act (Boullard having conducted the first act), he was greeted by an outburst of appliance that lasted for some minutes, during which he could only how his acknowledgments, Aumée also received a surf of evation when she tripped Aimée also received a sort of ovation when she tripped down to the footlights as Gabrielle. "La Vie Parisappeal as strongly to popular favor in America as many other works of the merry composer. It is rather appreciated out of the gay city. There is more dialogue appreciated out of the gay city. There is more dialogue and less music in it than in Offenbach's other works. Of course the brilliancy and wit of the former is undeniable, as might be expected from such collaborateurs as M.M. Meithac and Halevy, and Offenbach has infused some of his most seductive music into the second act. When M. J. Grau had his company at the Théatre Français (now Lyceum), some years ago, "La Vie Parisienne" was given for the first time in America, and although every care and unstituted liberality marked its representation it met with very in different success. Mime, Rose Bell then undertook the rôle of Gabrielle, and although she entirely lacked the dash and indescribable spirit of Aimee, yet her admirable singing was quite a feature. Mile, Aimée, while not possessing the vocal powers of Rose Bell (who was once in the Grand Opera), is a most successful interpreter of Offenbach's music. Her Gabrielle is instinct with the spirit of pure d-viltry and merriment. Every tone of her voice, every glance of her eye, every motion, seems the incarna, then of opera bouffe. In the second act, where her opportunities for effect were more marked than it any other portion of the opera, appliance greeted every effort. Of the rest of the company, the Baron de Gondremark of M. Dupian, the Raoul de Gardene of Dalbert, and the triple rôle which M. Darcy essayed, are deserving of particular praise. As a conductor of one of his own works. Offenbach displays a species of magnetism that is left on the stage and in the audience, as well as in the orchesters. He seems to communicate to the music additional sparkle and fire, and his presence acts like a charm on every one. "La Vie Parisienne" will be continued during the present week. and less music in it than in Offenbach's other works

The Irish drama of "The Kerry Gow" was produced at this house last night for the first time before a good audience, Mr. Joseph Murphy, for whom the drama was written, appearing in the role of Dan O'Hara. The play is much of the same complexion as are Irish dramas in general—thrilling situations, lively dialogue, witty speeches, arrests, prison scenes, escapes and "all that kind of thing." Mr. Murphy as Dan gave an excellent rendering of the part and made a favorable in cellent rendering of the part and made a lavorable impression. Next to Mr. Murphy's acting was that of Mr. J. A. Wilks, whose Mr. O'Drew, who always has "a word in season," was an excellent piece of character acting. Miss May Nunez as Nora O'Drew was not a success. Her acting was affected and her dialect poor. Miss Annie Mortimer was more successful in her rôle of Alice Doyle, and the remainder of the company acquitted thomselves creditably. "The Kerry Gow" is well put upon the stage, with new scenery and appointments, and, considering a first night, everything works smoothly.

Last night a fairly filled house greeted Mr. George years in Seymour's dramatization of "Les Miscrables" entitled Jean Vaijean. Mr. Boniface has all the power of expression which marked his characterizations in the past and made him such a favorite with New York audiences. His perfect familiarity with the parts assigned him and the facility he displays for making the most of them have insured him a warm reception from the audiences he has played before, and his rare versatility enables him to appear to advantage in rôte of a widely-different character. He was well seconded last night by Miss Marie Siella in the parts of Fantine and Cosette, and Mr. W. M. Ward made, as he generally does, a very eccentric but thoroughly enjoyable old man. Mr. Boniface's engagement expires this week, and every evening of it will be devoted to the repetition of last night's play.

KELLY & LEON'S MINSTRELS. An admirable programme was presented last evening well known combination of excellent artists. That they will meet with hearty recognition, as of yore, there is no reason to doubt, for a more enjoyable enter. tainment has not been given in many a day. It is replets with all the best elements that have made minstrelsy so popular and so permanent an attraction Among the interesting features of the first part was a rousing song, entitled "Coaching to Pelham," in which the delights of the road and the invigorating influences of a drive behind a coach and four were graphically de scribed. The words are by Mr. W. A. Armstrong and the music by Mr. Charles E. Pratt, the piece being dedicated to Coionel Delancey Kane and the Coaching Club of New York. It was sung by Mr. Lester, and promises to become a favorite with those who appreciate this rollicking style of compositios. Later on Mr. Kelly and kr. Leon appeared in a very humorous sketch entitled "Norma; Or, Titiens in a Minstrel Band," and provoked the heartiest merriment by their inimitable performances. Both these artists seem to have retained all their best powers, and met with a very warm recention. Mr. Lew Benedict's philosophical remarks were excellent in their way. Messrs, Walters and Morton acquitted themselves to the evident satisfaction of the assemblage in their quant and anussing song's and dances, and the performance was brought to a close with a very lumpy production, "The Two Off-Uns," in which some of the best artists of the company took part, and which made the handsome little opera house ring with peals of laughter. Messrs, Kelly & Leon bave transited their bright and sparkling entertainment under auspices that b.d fair to crown their efforts with success.
